

Northwestern Mutual Named a Best Place to Work in IT for 10th Consecutive Year

MILWAUKEE, June 22, 2015 /PRNewswire/ -- Northwestern Mutual today announced it has been honored as one of IDG's Computerworld 2015 Best Places to Work in IT. This is the 10th consecutive year Northwestern Mutual has been included in the top 100, ranking 36th among large companies (5,000 or more employees). This marks a significant move up from the company's ranking in 2014; also, Northwestern Mutual was the only Wisconsin-based employer to make the list of 100.

"The Best Places to Work in IT recognition reflects the importance Northwestern Mutual places on investing in digital technologies, our technology professionals and our digital workplace," said Karl Gouverneur, Northwestern Mutual vice president and chief technology officer. "To maintain our leadership position in the financial services market, it's essential to attract and retain high-caliber tech professionals."

Northwestern Mutual looks for highly qualified IT professionals from diverse backgrounds who welcome challenges, embrace teamwork, and are excited about innovation and new technologies, Gouverneur explained.

"Our company's goal is to be at the center of the financial lives of our more than 4 million clients," Gouverneur added. "To accomplish that, we focus on developing the innovative business systems and technology our financial representatives need to meet the demands of today's digital-savvy consumers."

Since 1994, Computerworld's annual Best Places to Work in IT feature has ranked the top 100 work environments for technology professionals, based on benefits, career development, training and retention. Computerworld is a leading source of business technology news and innovation for IT influencers worldwide. The list is compiled based on a comprehensive Computerworld questionnaire and extensive surveys of IT workers.
