

Northwestern Mutual Sees Record Inflows into New Active/Passive Investment Solutions as Clients Seek Lower Costs, Dynamic Asset Allocation

Northwestern Mutual client investment assets under management surpass $100 billion and wealth management business shows strong momentum as 2017 gets underway

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 7, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Northwestern Mutual announced today that the company's Signature Portfolios Active/Passive models, first introduced in early 2016, have surpassed $2 billion in assets through the end of 2016. This reflects investor demand for lower investment management costs, as well as a combination of active and passive strategies that can dynamically navigate today's investing environment. The models, which are offered by Northwestern Mutual Wealth Management Company, use both actively managed mutual funds and passively managed ETFs in an overall portfolio, with the goal of providing investors with competitive, risk-adjusted returns over the long term.

"The decision to use active or passive solutions is considered by many in the investment world as an either-or proposition; an investor is either in the 'active' or 'passive' camp. We believe each can add value to an overall portfolio when used as part of a disciplined investment process," said Christian Mitchell, president, Northwestern Mutual Wealth Management Company. "The dramatic growth in these models is testament to the fact that for many investors, while cost is an important factor, they are also looking for an optimal combination of strategies for meeting their personal financial goals over the long-term."

The active/passive models employ a dynamic asset-allocation selection overlay to provide "measured tilts" from the static long-term strategic asset allocation, based on the intermediate-term attractiveness of an asset class. Each tilt is evaluated in the context of the overall portfolio's risk and return characteristics by Northwestern Mutual's team of investment professionals and portfolio managers, led by Chief Investment Strategist, Brent Schutte. Schutte's regularly updated market perspectives are available here.

The growing use of the active/passive models is in concert with the overall growth of Northwestern Mutual's retail investment products and services, offered through Northwestern Mutual Investment Services and Northwestern Mutual Wealth Management Company, which as of December 31, 2016 reached $100 billion in assets under management. Northwestern Mutual Investment Services has been consistently ranked among the top 10 independent broker-dealers, as measured by total revenues, by leading investment industry publications.ⁱ

"This is an exciting milestone for our business, because behind this number is the fact that we have more than 7,000 financial professionals who are working day-to-day with individuals and families to create and manage personalized financial plans – and more and more of these financial professionals are building investment plans for their clients to help them grow, preserve and protect their wealth," said Mitchell.

According to Northwestern Mutual's 2016 Planning & Progress Study, the majority of Americans report that integrating solutions that both grow and protect their assets is one of the most important factors in achieving their financial security.

Through its subsidiaries, Northwestern Mutual Investment Services and Northwestern Mutual Wealth Management Company, Northwestern Mutual provides individuals with a variety of investment products and services to help people with financial protection, wealth accumulation and estate preservation and distribution.
