

New $10 Million Investment to Support Startups

Northwestern Mutual and Aurora Health Care Collaborate to Advance Technology & Innovation in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Northwestern Mutual and Aurora Health Care announced today the companies are each investing $5 million to support local Milwaukee startups through a multiyear funding commitment, business resources and mentorship.

Northwestern Mutual's Cream City Venture Capital (VC) and Aurora Health Care's InvestMKE are the latest examples of both companies' commitment to growing the local startup community. Cream City VC and InvestMKE will each have independent investment criteria, but will be run in close collaboration to maximize the opportunities for funding, mentorship and technology development.

"We recognize technology is a key driver of Milwaukee's future and the private sector needs to play a lead role in getting us there," said John E. Schlifske, chairman and CEO, Northwestern Mutual. "Cream City Venture Capital demonstrates our commitment to advancing the startup community to create a vibrant tech ecosystem in Milwaukee that attracts and retains top technology talent."

Cream City VC, led by Northwestern Mutual venture partner Craig Schedler, will provide early stage funding for startups ranging from $100,000 to $250,000. Beyond providing early stage capital, Cream City VC will offer its portfolio of companies access to additional Northwestern Mutual resources, including advisors, mentors, co-working space and technology resources. Cream City VC investments will not be focused on a specific industry. The fund will look to partner with local entrepreneurs that are leveraging technology solutions to address significant problems and have a clear vision of the business they are trying to create.

"Technology is rapidly changing not only how we experience health care, but how we live our lives," said Nick Turkal, MD, president and CEO of Aurora Health Care. "Entrepreneurs right here in southeastern Wisconsin are at the forefront of this revolution, developing and implementing ideas today that will make a difference tomorrow. Investment through the InvestMKE fund will help us deliver high-quality, cost-effective health care, ultimately helping people live well here at home."

Through InvestMKE, Aurora will co-invest, alongside Cream City VC and other qualified investment professionals, up to $1 million in early-stage companies that make health easier, more efficient, and more personalized. In addition to providing investment capital, Aurora plans to link companies with its vast network of health professionals and patient insights that can shape, refine and provide validation efforts for the most promising solutions.

Cream City VC and InvestMKE are backed by Northwestern Mutual's experience in venture capital and Aurora's extensive and integrated care delivery network. In January 2017, Northwestern Mutual launched Northwestern Mutual Future Ventures, a $50 million venture capital fund focused on engaging startups whose technologies have the potential to transform how consumers experience and achieve financial security.
