Endorsed by the American Library Association as a Great Web Site for Kids, themint.org is designed to help improve the financial literacy of children and tweens by providing games, activities and information, meaningful content for parents, and classroom tools and resources for teachers.

The enhanced site provides updated content for Kids, Parents, Tweens and Teachers on topics ranging from the basics of earning, saving, spending and giving to more sophisticated, age-appropriate, financial lessons. Parents can easily access a series of articles on timely topics, including 'how to' advice and practical pointers for talking to their children about money. In addition, the site offers resources for the classroom, which are optimized for interactive use on classroom smart boards. Teachers can also download a variety of lesson plan materials.

"Themint.org provides actionable content to help kids establish the building blocks of financial know-how that can enable them to become financially responsible adults," says John Kordsmeier, president of the Northwestern Mutual Foundation. "We're proud to offer this valuable resource and hope it plays a role in helping families achieve financial security over time."

Themint.org also conducts quarterly online polls of visitors to the site. The polls generate engaging conversation by posing thought-provoking questions for parents and kids to discuss. The site includes a full archive of past polls.
