

Northwestern Mutual acquires stake in Neptune Regional Transmission System from Starwood Energy

MILWAUKEE, June 16, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- NM Neptune, LLC, an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Northwestern Mutual, has acquired Starwood Energy's 25 percent Class C stake in the Neptune Regional Transmission System.

The 65-mile high-voltage, direct-current underwater transmission cable connects Sayreville, New Jersey to Long Island, New York. The Neptune system has been operational since 2007 and its 660 Megawatts of capacity are fully contracted to the Long Island Power Authority (LIPA) under a 20-year agreement.

"Neptune represents a significant addition to our infrastructure equity platform that we formally launched in 2013 within Northwestern Mutual Capital. The combination of current yield from an asset with strategic importance to the power markets of the Northeastern United States is very attractive," said Ron Joelson, Executive Vice President and Chief Investment Officer for Northwestern Mutual. "Our investment objective is to generate superior returns while maintaining a well-balanced and diversified investment portfolio to preserve the company's exceptional financial strength."

An essential ingredient in maintaining Northwestern Mutual's financial strength and ability to deliver value to policyowners is the performance of the company's $186 billion general account investment portfolio, whose assets back the company's insurance and annuity products.

The investment earnings generated by this portfolio produce capital that builds the company's strong financial base. They are also one of the primary determinants of the interest component of the dividend scale for traditional permanent life insurance policies.

Northwestern Mutual Capital is a wholly-owned subsidiary of The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, which is also its largest client. Northwestern Mutual Capital manages over $33 billion of private assets for its clients across a portfolio of investment grade private placements, mezzanine and equity co-investments in private equity transactions and private equity funds. It is neither a registered investment advisor nor a registered broker-dealer.
